Sewer System

All residents and guests,

This year, Clear Lake Association has spent many thousands of dollars (app. $3500) flushing out the drain lines of our sewer system due to residents and possibly their guests flushing items down the toilet and sinks that should not be put in the sewer system.

Please discuss these items with all members of your household as this is getting quite expensive and coming out of the Lake budget. Other items that should not be put down the drain are things like, grease, vegetable skins, or anything that would disrupt the flow or the balance of the sewer system. Residents who have renters, need to also share this information with their tenants.

What Not to Flush – Things You Should Never Flush Down the Toilet

If you want to keep it simple, just remember this: never flush anything but human waste and toilet paper. Even with this, you'll want to be careful not to flush too much toilet paper at one time (to avoid a clogged toilet). Are you surprised? Have you thought it was okay to flush other things down the toilet? The following are items people commonly think are okay to flush but aren't. We've provided reasons why you shouldn't flush these items so you'll understand the rationale behind the rule.

Sanitary Products

It might seem natural to flush these items down, but they'll clog your pipes and land you a visit from the plumber.

Wipes

Again, it might seem like an intuitive thing to flush, but wipes (baby wipes, facial wipes included) are made of materials that don't break down. They can get snagged or bunched up together and clog up your pipes.

Floss

You'd think it's so small that it wouldn't cause a problem, but it doesn't biodegrade and can get tangled around toilet paper, causing clogs in pipes.

Sewer System

Prescription Drugs and Over-The-Counter Medications

While it might seem like a safe way to dispose of expired medications, you're just dumping chemicals into the water system. Our water treatment plants are not equipped to remove all those chemicals from the water. In fact the EPA (Environmental Protection Agency) advises you to dispose of medications by sealing them in a plastic bag and disposing of them in the trash. (While you're thinking about what is in our water system, consider reading about water filtration systems and why even the Obama administration advises home owners to install water filters.)

Kitty Litter

Kitty litter (especially clay kitty litter) will clog your pipes for sure. Even the "flushable" kind is debatable, as it can still clog your pipes (much as the manufacturers will claim it won't), and Toxoplasmosis, a parasite found in kitty waste, is harmful to marine biology. We want to keep kitty waste out of our water system.

Diapers

Don't even think about it. Your chances of a nasty clogged toilet are astronomically high.

Paper Towels

We know it's convenient to swipe the bathroom counter and toss the paper towel down the toilet, but you're playing Russian roulette with a clogged pipe. Paper towels, even if torn into little pieces and flushed separately (which wastes a lot of water) will not break down and will cause clogs in your pipe.

Facial Tissue

Facial tissue doesn't break down like toilet paper does, but there's yet another reason not to flush it: to save water. It's never a good idea to use the toilet as a trash can. You're wasting anywhere from 2-5 gallons of water every time you flush.

Cigarette Butts

Cigarettes contain chemicals that you don't want entering the water supply. Keep in mind that sewerage is treated and recycled, so we want to keep our water as chemical-free as possible.

Condoms

These cause more problems than you'd imagine, because they get tangled up in other stuff and cause clogged pipes.

Lake Reminders

- Bagworm treatment on residents and common property trees (spray in May & June).
- Residents are responsible for sprinkler repairs across from their property
- Maintain 15 mph speed limit around the lake/renters
- Pet owners keep pets on leashes and clean up after their pets

Lake Reminders

- Parking – Clear Lake does not allow parking on the common property or shelter area on a long term basis. 24 hours maximum (trailers, vehicles, watercrafts, etc)
- Local Wildlife: Please do not feed the ducks / geese.
 - Mess on the beaches - Swimmer itch w/ snails
- Phosphorus-free Fertilizer Regulations
Clear Lake mandates a phosphorus-free fertilizer regulation.
 - Too much phosphorous in the water results in an over-abundance of algae growth in the water which lowers the oxygen levels, this introduces poisonous toxins and results in fish kill.

Biology

Causal Agent:

Cercarial dermatitis is caused by the cercariae of certain species of schistosomes whose normal hosts are birds and mammals other than humans. These cercariae seem to have a chemotrophic reaction to secretions from the skin and are not as host-specific as other types of schistosomes. They attempt to, and, sometimes may actually, enter human skin. The penetration causes a dermatitis which is usually accompanied with intense itching, but the cercariae do not mature into adults in the human body. Cases of cercarial dermatitis can occur in both fresh and brackish water environments. One species of schistosome often implicated in cases of cercarial dermatitis is Austrobilharzia variglandis, whose normal hosts are ducks. The snail, Nassarius obsoletus, is the intermediate host for this species and can be found at marine beaches in temperate climates. Cercarial dermatitis should not be confused with seabather's eruption, which is caused by the larval stage of cnidarians (e.g., jellyfish). The areas of skin affected by seabather's eruption is generally under the garments worn by bathers and swimmers where the organisms are trapped after the person leaves the water. Cercarial dermatitis occurs on the exposed skin outside of close-fitting garments.

Swimmer's Itch

Hosts of avian schistosomes can be either year-round resident or migratory birds, including seagulls, shorebirds, ducks, and geese. Adult worms are found in the blood vessels and produce eggs that are passed in the feces 1. On exposure to water, the eggs hatch and liberate a ciliated miracidium that infects a suitable snail (gastropod) intermediate host 2. The parasite develops in the intermediate host 3 to produce free-swimming cercariae that are released under appropriate conditions and penetrate the skin of the birds and migrate to the blood vessels to complete the cycle 4. Humans are inadvertent and inappropriate hosts; cercariae may penetrate the skin but do not develop further 5. A number of species of trematodes with dermatitis-producing cercariae have been described from both freshwater and saltwater environments, and exposure to either type of cercaria will sensitize persons to both.
